

President's Message

Following our recent DMA Board meeting, I can report that your organization continues to be in excellent shape financially and especially with programs and activities. Spring is just around the corner, which means DMA has lots to look forward to during the next few weeks. The Social Committee has been hard at work. While the March outing to New Haven to see "Beautiful" is fully subscribed, April will offer an opportunity to visit the New Britain Museum of American Art and the Hill-Stead Museum in Farmington, two fabulous collections, with a fine luncheon in between. Also planned is an outing to see the Bridgeport Sound Tigers play hockey at Webster Bank Arena. Hiking will emerge from hibernation as will Happy Wanderings, though the latter group will be busy with its annual March Madness pool. And, of course, our Speaker lineup promises more great presentations. Many of you have brought guests to meetings all year long, which has led to a growing group of new members year to date. Keep up the good work! DMA is a gem that remains a surprisingly well-kept secret to many of our contemporaries in town. I, for one, am proud to show off all that it has to offer.

Tom Lom, President

Events & Activities

March Madness Basketball Pool

 John Barston announced the only time members can enter the pool is March 14 at the Wednesday morning meeting. The Final Four tournament begins the next day. The NCAA announces brackets on Selection Sunday, March 11. That leaves three days to pick the eight teams you think will accumulate the most number of points and which one of those eight teams will win the tournament. The entry fee is $5. Participation is restricted to DMA members and their families. There is no restriction on the number of entries you or a family member can make. Contest managers John Barston and Bill Bellis will be on hand to take your entries on March 14 before the start of the meeting, during the coffee break and at the end of the meeting. Good luck to all.

Bowling

Gehr Brown spiced up the usual group photo by equipping bowlers with some sports memorabilia. The result was this goofy photo of bowlers hamming it up. They meet at the Nutmeg Lanes in Fairfield every Tuesday at 9:15 a.m. All are encouraged to join in the fun.

Trips April and May

Tom Brayton announced trips for April and May. A visit to the New Britain Museum of American Art in New Britain, Conn., is set for April 27. The museum has 8,300 paintings, sculptures, photographs and illustrations by American artists, including Norman Rockwell, Winslow Homer and John Singer Sargent. After lunch, the group will go on to visit the Hill-Stead Museum, Farmington, Conn., to view an exhibit of impressionist masterpieces in the Alfred Pope colonial revivalist home. May 12 is a tour of the Sagamore Hill National Historic Site and the Theodore Roosevelt Home in Oyster Bay, N.Y., followed by a tour of the nearby Vanderbilt Eagle's Nest Mansion in Centerport, N.Y., for a look at the life of a privileged family from the Jazz Age through WW II. Of special note, the March trip to see the musical "Beautiful: The Carole King Musical" at the Schubert Theater in New Haven was a complete sellout.

John Barston announced that the winners of the 2018 Super Bowl are Taylor Strubinger, $25 for the score at the end of the first quarter; Ed Mulock, $50 for the score at the half; David Dever, $25 for the score at the end of the third quarter; Kevin Davidson, $100 for the final score. John was assisted in running the pool by Bill Bellis and Taylor Strubinger. Next up is the March Madness basketball pool.

“Fly, Eagles Fly”

This lone Eagles fan flew brazenly into the DMA meeting just as the Super Bowl pool winners were being announced.

The dejected Patriots fans, saddened at the loss to the Eagles team, gave him a resounding catcall.

Not to be denied, the rogue Eagles fan was able to hold onto his feathers and brow beat the audience into reluctantly singing the Eagles fight song, “Fly, Eagles Fly.”

Bridge

Tony Kwedar, chair of the bridge group, says they meet every Tuesday at 1 p.m. at St. Luke's Episcopal Church in the Taylor Room. Scores of the individual players are announced at the Wednesday morning DMA meetings. They play year round. All are welcome to join in.

New Member Coffee

John Podkowsky, chairman, membership and hospitality, held another in a series of new member coffees on January 10 prior to the general membership meeting. The goal is to provide new members with an opportunity to learn about DMA and find out how they can become active. New member names are in boldface in the captions below. Photos by Gregory Glashan

SCOTT HUTCHASON, GENE GILDEA, DAVID CLAIBORNE

Woodworking

Tom Williams says the woodworking group keeps busy year round sanding, repairing and refinishing old chairs and tables that need sprucing up. If you have any furniture around your house that needs fixing, they would be happy to take care of it for you. The workshop is open Mondays and Tuesdays, starting at 9 a.m. and is set up in the Mather Center at 2 Renshaw Road.

l. to r., Herb Winter, Rolle Holus, Fran, Al Metoyer, Ed Drachm. Not present: Tom Williams, Mike Harte, Bill Kirche

Computers

Ed Mulock says bring in your questions about what makes your smartphone or laptop tick, and, together, we will try to come up with the answer. It sometimes is a challenge, but it always is fun to solve the puzzle. Ed is there Tuesdays at 10 a.m. in the computer room in the Mather Center.

Happy Wanderers: Staten Island, Old Harlem

The Happy Wanderers will kick off their spring season on Tuesday, March 20, with a trip to Staten Island, reports Joe Spain. Plans are to take the subway from Grand Central Station to the ferry terminal at the tip of Manhattan and then cross the lower harbor to New York's southernmost borough. The walk will include a tour of several historic districts and a ride on the island's transit system. On April 17, Sunil Saksena will lead a tour of Old Harlem.

Historic American Flags Exhibit

Joe Spain organized a tour of the Darien Historical Society exhibit called "Long May She Wave -- the Chronological Evolution of Our Flag." The exhibit shows genuine historic and replica flags, from the pre-Revolutionary War to modern times. Included is a collection of love letters written to a woman in Middlesex Parish and a timeline of historical events in Darien as the flag evolved.

Richard Hyman will be sharing stories and photos about his time working for Jacques Cousteau and the crew of the research vessel Calypso. Richard was a professional diver and photographer for Cousteau. He worked his way up from driving a supply truck from Los Angeles to the Canadian wilderness to building a cabin for the team to winter in during the filming of “Beavers of the North Country.” A year later, he worked as a deck hand on Calypso for the filming of “The Fish That Swallowed Johan.” While on the Calypso, John Denver visited and performed a televised concert on the foredeck. On Richard’s final expedition, he graduated to diver and photographer. En route to Venezuela, he experienced treacherous deep dives on the wreck of the USS Monitor off the coast of North Carolina, skeleton remains inside wrecks off Martinique and the death of Jacques Cousteau’s son, Philippe. Richard is a certified Professional Association of Diving Instructors aquanaut, a member of the Marine Biology Hall of Fame and a trustee of the Fabien Cousteau Ocean Learning Center.

Moritz von Stuelpnagel will discuss how a passion and an idea – against all odds – became a

Broadway show and will explain what it takes to make a hit. Along the way, he’ll touch on how the feast or famine economics and the cut-throat politics of the industry work from the inside. Moritz, a Broadway theatre director, originally hails from Darien and Greenwich. Today, he is an award-winning, internationally recognized theatre director based in New York City. His recent Broadway revival of Noel Coward’s “Present Laughter” garnered three Tony Award nominations. He guided Robert Askins’ play “Hand of God” to success, starting Off-Off Broadway to Off-Broadway to the play’s Broadway debut, where it received five Tony nominations. Before arriving on Broadway, the play earned a Lortel Award and a nomination for a Joseph A. Callaway Stage Directors and Choreographers Award. He also directed “Hand of God” in London’s West End, receiving an Olivier nomination for Best New Comedy. Other recent Off-

Broadway productions include “Teenage Dick,” Public Theater; “Important Hats of the Twentieth Century,” Lincoln Center Theatre; “Bike America,” Ma-Yi Theater; “Love Song of the Albanian Sous Chef,” Ensemble Studio Theater; “Trevor,” Lesser America; “Mel & El: Show & Tell,” Ars Nova; “The Roosevelt Cousins Thoroughly Sauced,” Ensemble Studio Theatre; “Spacebar,” Studio 42; and “My Base and Scurvy Heart,” Studio 42. His work has been seen in other venues such as the Alliance Theatre, Williamstown Theatre Festival, the Huntington Theatre and many others. As a sometimes producer, he is the former artistic director of Studio 43, New York’s producer of “introducible” plays. He is a graduate of the Greenwich public schools and holds a B.F.A. in theatre studies from Boston University and an M.F.A. in direction from Rutgers University.

Kevin Peraino will discuss the Truman administration’s response to the fall of Nationalist China and the triumph of Mao Zedong’s Communist forces in 1949 – an extraordinary political revolution that continues to shape East Asian politics to this day. Drawing on Chinese and Russian sources, as well as recently declassified CIA documents, he tells the story of this remarkable year through the eyes of key players, including Mao, Truman, Secretary of State Acheson, Congressman Walter Judd and Madame Chiang Kai-shek. In the opening months of 1949, Truman found himself faced with a looming diplomatic catastrophe. Through the spring and summer, Mao’s Communist armies fanned out across mainland China, annihilating the rival troops of America’s one-time ally Chiang Kai-shek and taking control of Beijing, Shanghai and other major cities. As Truman and his aides scrambled to formulate a response, they were forced to contend not only with Mao but with unrelenting political enemies at home. Over the course of the year, Mao fashioned a new revolutionary government in Beijing that laid the foundation for the China we know today, while Chiang Kai-shek would flee to the island sanctuary of Taiwan. These events transformed American foreign policy – leading ultimately to decades of friction with Communist China, a long-standing U.S. commitment to Taiwan, and the subsequent wars in Korea and Vietnam. Kevin is a veteran foreign correspondent who has reported from around the world. A senior writer and bureau chief at Newsweek for a decade, he was a finalist for the Livingston Award for foreign reporting and part of a team that won the National Magazine Award in 2004. He is the author of “Lincoln in the World: The Making of a Statesman and the Dawn of American Power.” His latest book is titled A Force So Swift: Mao, Truman and the Birth of Modern China, 1949.

Andy Bramante, a science teacher at Greenwich High School, will talk about what's behind the incredible success of his students and how he motivates them to peak performance. Over the last 10 years, more than 30 of Andy's students have competed in the Intel Science and Engineering Fairs, won six First Place, three Best of Category and two Grand Prize awards. Earlier this year, two of his students were semifinalists in the International Google Science Fair. One won the Grand Prize for designing a low-cost portable test for ebola and received a scholarship of $50,000. Last year, six students were selected as the Regeneron Science Talent Scholars, and two won a $100,000 scholarship. Andy received an M.S. degree in chemistry from Fordham. Before joining Greenwich High School in 2005, he had an 18-year career as an engineer/scientist in industry and worked for several companies, including Hitachi Instruments and Perkin-Elmer. Throughout this period, he taught chemistry at the college level at Baruch and Sacred Heart universities.

Heather Pech will speak of her experiences running marathons, particularly the recent Boston Marathon, where she won her 55-59 age bracket. Her time was better than 698 other runners in her category. She also will discuss the increased performance by American runners in international competitions and the responsibilities and satisfaction of coaching a group of Darien middle school kids who want to run – they call themselves The Blazers. After graduation from the University of Minnesota and the Wood Tobe Coburn School, she entered the fashion retail field. Initially, she was with Ralph Lauren and Calvin Klein. She then joined Jones Apparel Group, culminating in serving as CEO of its Polo Jeans Company and then 9 West. She finished her business career as CEO of Nanette Lepore, a $120 million contemporary fashion designer with multiple locations here and in the U.K. Heather was born and raised in Darien and still lives here with her three daughters. She continues to be an active runner, clocking 80 to 90 miles a week.

Ambassador Donald Gregg will speak on the current administration's challenges due to today's situation on the Korean peninsula, its impact on neighboring U.S. allies in the Asia Pacific region and what policy options exist for the Trump administration. Donald will share his thinking on the world situation through the lens of his unique background as a top diplomat and intelligence operative. He graduated from Williams College in 1951 and joined the CIA, where, over the next quarter century, he was assigned to East Asian countries. He was seconded to the National Security Council staff in 1979, where he was in charge of intelligence activities and Asian policy affairs. Upon his retirement from the CIA, he was awarded the Distinguished Intelligence Medal. In 1982, Gregg was asked to be national security advisor by Vice President George W. Bush, and, over six years, traveled to 65 countries. He also served as a professorial lecturer at Georgetown University, teaching a graduate-level workshop entitled Force and Diplomacy. In 1989, Gregg began service as the U.S. Ambassador to South Korea. He retired from his 43-year government career in 1993. Today, he is chairman of the Pacific Century Institute in Los Angeles and chairman emeritus of The Korea Society of New York City. He is actively working to establish normal relations with North Korea and has visited the country six times.

Sean Pica, executive director of Hudson Link for Higher Education in Prison, returns to the DMA to give an update on his organization's work, including some exciting new initiatives that have been rolled out in the last few years. Hudson Link partners with a number of colleges, including Mercy, Vassar, Columbia and Nyack, to provide college degree programs in New York State prisons. The organization has experienced tremendous growth since he last visited with us, with more prison programs launched, much larger enrollment and many more degrees granted. Hudson Link also has expanded into other related areas, including a new initiative in temporary post-release housing. Sean will share the details of Hudson Link's current activities and recent developments in prison education and post-release support. Most important, the number of released alumni has increased dramatically, and their success on the outside is noteworthy: The vast majority are employed within six months of release; 34% of graduates pursue graduate degrees; and while 43% of released prisoners in New York return to prison within three years, only 4% of released Hudson Link alumni have gone back to prison. Several Hudson Link alumni, now productive members of their communities, will accompany Sean to share their experiences.

Book Club

Harris Hester reports that the following books will be read during March and April. March 14: In the Heart of the Sea by Nathaniel Philbrick. In 1819, the whaleship Essex with a crew of 20 left Nantucket for the South Pacific, where it was rammed and sunk by an angry sperm whale. The crew drifted for 90 days in three tiny whaleboats, enduring weather, hunger and disease, ultimately turning to drastic measures in the fight to survive. April 11: The Great Gatsby by Scott Fitzgerald. The mysterious Jay Gatsby uses his wealth to create an enchanted world of lavish parties. But sinister reality emerges, as idealized romantic figures prove to have human frailties and disillusion turns to tragedy. Discussions are held in the Library of the Mather Center the second Wednesday of the month starting at 12:30 p.m. Participants bring their own lunch or purchase food in the center's cafeteria.

Current Affairs

Jim Phillips reports that the Current Affairs group will discuss The Roots of Income Inequality on March 15. Bryan Hooper is the discussion leader. On April 19, the group will discuss The Syrian Refugee Crisis led by David Mace. For more information on either subject, go to the DMA website and open the section entitled Current Affairs. There you will find background information on the upcoming subject that is updated on a regular basis during the weeks prior to the discussion. The group meets the third Thursday of each month at 8:15 a.m. in the Lillian Gade Room on the second floor of the Darien Community Association. The focus of the discussion is to talk about information that is relevant, not to debate the pros and cons of an issue.

Program Speaker Suggestions

John Wolcott, chairman, program speakers, welcomes ideas you may have for speakers. Contact John at (203) 656-0842 or jowdarien@gmail.com.

Pickleball

Al Metayer reports that pickleball continues to gain popularity with a growing number of participants. They take the court on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 9:30 a.m. at the Mather Center, 2 Renshaw Road, located right next door to Darien Town Hall.
